Thus, an app called Firegear has been created which allows gay men to 'give fire' and extinguish fires that are 'burning out their nests'. The terms are used with ironic glee, yes, but the whole point is that Firegear is actually a cute little app that makes peoples' lives a little more comfortable in what is a difficult time for many. For example, there have been several fires that have been burning since the beginning of the year and possibly the bigger problem is the lack of extinguishers to put them out. So, an application that can alert the community to potential fires has been created and that is really just a very nice idea. While it might sound like a hard task to 'evic' the fire, the point is that it could be done effectively with little more effort than a simple mob alert. If you would like to download the app, you can do that here: As a side note: what would really be great is if the app that most of the gay men on Grindr use to pick up sex was more like Firegear. While we all know that apps like Grindr can
